BEING MARRIED

When life changes, insurance needs change.

SAY "I DO" FOR EACH OTHER.

Getting married can be stressful. From planning the big day to adjusting to sharing your life with the one you love, there's a never-ending list of things to do and decisions to make. If you're a newlywed or will be one soon, insurance is probably the last thing on your mind; yet, it's something that can't be overlooked. Likewise, if you're getting remarried, your financial situation is going to change as well. No matter what stage in married life you're in, one of the most important steps you need to take as Mr. and Mrs. is reviewing your disability and life insurance plans.

Disability Insurance FOR MARRIED COUPLES

You and your spouse work hard to give each other everything you want and need. The ability of both of you to work and earn paychecks is essential to having the life you've dreamed for each other. If you were to become sick or hurt and couldn't work, what would happen? Most couples depend on two incomes to make ends meet. The loss of even one income can mean a drastic change in lifestyle. Disability insurance can help prevent a financial disaster.

Life Insurance FOR MARRIED COUPLES

No matter how long you've been married, think about this – what would happen if you died suddenly? How would your spouse move on and keep up with your obligations at the same time? You count on each other every day, so you'll want to be sure you both are protected in the event something were to happen to one or both of you. Life insurance isn't something you want to think about, but you need to for each other.

For nearly a century, Illinois Mutual has remained committed to providing flexible and affordable insurance plans, giving you the protection you need.
